

POWELL SCHOOLS

High School; Reports From Growing School System

d con-Aguirre ause of ld have ect at-rst six

FOOTBALL POSTPONED

From the high school the Tribune learns that the football game scheduled with Greybull this Friday—to be held here—has been postponed on account of the weather.

SCHOOLS HAVE PENNY MILK PROGRAM

Our local PTA is sponsoring a penny milk program for the benefit of all school children. The children may buy a half-pint of milk for one penny.

The Powell Valley Creamery is furnishing the milk, which is grade A milk. All students who bring their lunch from home should take advantage of this program. The milk will be available to high school students as well as the grade pupils.

The milk will be delivered at noon in order that the pupils may have it with their lunch.

This program is an opportunity for your children. Why not take advantage of it?

MARIE FEELEY School Nurse.

HOLD INITIATION

The home ec club had their formal initiation Thursday evening in the home ec rooms. The initiation was conducted by candlelight and initiates wore dark dresses, while officers wore formals. Each initiate was given a bow of red and white ribbon, club colors, in place of club pins which have not yet arrived.

Initiates included Elaine Hony, Jenny Lynn, Ruby Lynn, Alice Reno, Evelyn Richards, Betty Roberts, Lola Sand Pat Underwood and Melba Cunningham.

After the initiation they were entertained at a Hallowe'en party.

Initiates were required to wear an apron and carry an egg beater or can opener on Friday.

Evelyn Richards was elected to fill the vacancy as secretary-treasurer, left by Phyllis Rickman.

WANTED TO BUY—Hides, wool, pelts, furs and metal. Will pay highest market prices. Abe Lieberman, near Powell hospital. 6-1f.

Heart Mountain Breezes - - -

By MARY OYAMA
Heart Mountain, Wyoming

Howdy:

Greetings fellow Americans of Wyoming! Although it may be sacrilege in the eyes of the California chamber of commerce to say this—we being native Californians we do like Wyoming. We like the people here, the unusually blue sky, the picturesque Heart mountain, and the spectacularly beautiful sunrises and sunsets. Also, it's a pleasure and an honor to write for the Powell Tribune. Having already met Editor Baird and Mrs. Baird, we are sure that we shall get along nicely.

"Greenhorns"

Your columnist is one of the gaping greenhorns who are seeing kangaroo mice for the first time—they're cute (the mice, we mean). And some are seeing snow and experiencing below freezing weather for the first time in their lives. This is quite a contrast to the semi-tropical palms, Poinsettia hedges, and the almost seasonless days of southern California, for instance. Those who are "oldtimers" or who are well acquainted with the cooler states, laugh when some of us new softies complain about the "cold" when the temperature drops down to about 30-20 degrees above.

The younger American citizen of Japanese ancestry are pop-eyed with delight when it snows and get "mad at" their parents with disappointment when it doesn't—as if the latter were directly responsible for the vagaries of the weather.

The Real McCoy

Some of the kiddies are seeing sheep for the first time too. Many of these tots have come from such metropolitan areas as San Francisco and Los Angeles, and although a few had seen pictures of sheep in their books (or maybe on their plates as lamb chops), they'd never seen the live sheep on the hoof.

You can imagine the excitement about a month ago when a flock of sheep passed by the northwest corner of the Center just about noon time. Some of the kiddies in the end mess hall, although hungry, left practically untouched dinner to rush out after the sheep. One kid excitedly described the baa-ing animals as pigs.

Incidentally, all of the youngsters speak fluent English, and for most of them, this is the only language which they know.

New Americans

Many of these children are third generation Americans, since their parents were born here in the United States. Their grandparents, the so-called "aliens" who were born in Japan, are called "Issel" (pronounced ee-say) meaning the "first generation." They are aliens not because they want to be, but because by U. S. law they are ineligible for American citizenship. Their American-born sons and daughters are the second generation or the "Nisei" (nee-say), many of whom are now married and have new American offspring of their own.

The average age of the Nisei is about 22, which makes him a young person just out of college, making his way out into the world, and one who is about to cast his vote for the second time. He may have black hair, oriental eyes and look like a Japanese, but he most certainly is anything but. In fact, he resents being called a Jap.

Some Caucasian Americans may not know it, but the word Jap has a very derogatory connotation—the same as "Dago" "Chink" or "Greaser." Not even the Issei like to be referred to as "Jap," let alone the Nisei. The American-born young people are designated as Nisei, Japanese-Americans, Americans of Japanese descent, or as Louis Adamic, the noted author, aptly does, "Americans with Japanese Faces."

AUTOMOTIVE GROUP TO SEE MATINEE

"Pardon My Sarong" is the title of next Sunday's attraction at the Teton theatre. The manager, Buster Morris, has invited the group at the Wyoming Automotive Co. to be his guests at the Sunday afternoon show.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN LATER MORNINGS

Beginning Monday November 9, school will open each morning at

For Sale

Farm for sale. Enquire Tribune.

FOR SALE—160-acre r Southfork, 15 miles south Cody, with grazing land on tract near ranch. Mrs. Cassatin.

Good Powell Home fo House and two lots; first p of Teton Court on highway water, gas. Fred Heiberg.

FOR SALE—Plenty of and ducks for Thanksgiving. A. K. Bradford.

FOR SALE—Ten goo boulet bucks and ten gooshires. Abe Lieberman, pt

FOR SALE OR TRADE—10 miles east of Powell; irrigated; 75 creek bottom two houses; on oiled high quire at Tribune.

FOR SALE—Wealthy the Frank Hart ranch. cider.

FOR SALE—80-acre fa Kilgore, phone 11-W.

125 head aged ewes, lamb March 1st, also 17 h ling x-bred Columbia bucl Gallentine, Clark, Wyoming

FOR SALE—Dining roo sion table, Queen Anne st Fred Klindt.

FOR SALE—Nice 4-roo house. Inquire at 606 N street, Powell.

For Rent

FOR RENT—Warm apartment. Frank Elder.

Miscellaneous

Rolls developed by craftsman 8 high gloss enlargement, 25c (coin). 3c each. Baumgartner St lings, Montana.

Elders have a few I Mattresses and Coil Sp

Howe'en
ted our brought ils and ilication
on. Man geog-f Egypt.
ypt, the
phy.
ral and for a give it
Texas
e 100 in r, Mar-artman,
la, Sam
nd Paul Dwinnell
ool fast hermop-r Texas be back arty last for the ishop to ie chose il.
spelling
f, Dale
Clarence
Dean
fane Rea

“Heart Mountain Breezes” by Mary Oyama, originally published in The Powell Tribune, November 5, 1942

Howdy:

Greetings fellow Americans of Wyoming! Although it may be sacrilege in the eyes of the California chamber of commerce to say this—we being native Californians we do like Wyoming. We like the people here, the unusually blue sky, the picturesque Heart Mountain, and the spectacularly beautiful sunrises and sunsets. Also, it’s a pleasure and an honor to write for the Powell Tribune. Having already met Editor Baird and Mrs. Baird, we are sure we shall get along nicely.

“Greenhorns”

Your columnist is one of the gaping greenhorns who are seeing kangaroo mice for the first time—they’re cute (the mice, we mean). And some are seeing snow and experiencing below freezing weather for the first time in their lives. This is quite a contrast to the semi-tropical palms, Poinsettia hedges, and the almost seasonless days of southern California, for instance. Those who are “oldtimers” or who are well acquainted with the cooler states, laugh when some of us new softies complain about the “cold” when the temperature drops down to about 30-20 degrees above.

The younger American citizen of Japanese ancestry are pop-eyed with delight when it snows and get “mad at” their parents with disappointment when it doesn’t—as if the latter were directly responsible for the vagaries of the weather.

The Real McCoy

Some of the kiddies are seeing sheep for the first time too. Many of these tots have come from such metropolitan areas as San Francisco and Los Angeles, and although a few had seen pictures of sheep in their books (or maybe on their plates as lamb chops), they’d never seen the live sheep on the hoof.

You can imagine the excitement about a month ago when a flock of sheep passed by the northwest corner of the Center just about noon time. Some of the kiddies in the end mess hall, although hungry, left practically untouched dinner to rush out after the sheep. One kid excitedly described the baa-ing animals as pigs.

Incidentally, all of the youngsters speak fluent English, and for most of them, this is the only language which they know.

New Americans

Many of these children are third generation Americans, since their parents were born here in the United States. Their grandparents, the so-called “aliens” who were born in Japan, are called “Issei” (pronounced ee-say) meaning the “first generation.” They are aliens not because they want to be, but because by U.S. law they are ineligible for

American citizenship. Their American-born sons and daughters are the second generation or the “Nisei” (nee-say), many of whom are now married and have new American offspring of their own.

The average age of the Nisei is about 22, which makes him a young person just out of college, making his way out into the world, and one who is about to cast his vote for the second time. He may have black hair, oriental eyes, and look like a Japanese, but he most certainly is anything but. In fact, he resents being called a Jap.

Some Caucasian Americans may not know it, but the word Jap has a very derogatory connotation—the same as “Dago” “Chink” or “Greaser.” Not even the Issei like to be referred to as “Jap,” let alone the Nisei. The American-born young people are designated as Nisei, Japanese-Americans, Americans of Japanese descent, or as Louis Adamic, the noted author, aptly does, “Americans with Japanese Faces.”

“Heart Mountain Breezes” by Mary Oyama, originally published in The Powell Tribune, November 5, 1942

Howdy:

Greetings fellow Americans of Wyoming! Although it may be sacrilege in the eyes of the California chamber of commerce to say this—we being native Californians we do like Wyoming. We like the people here, the unusually blue sky, the picturesque Heart Mountain, and the spectacularly beautiful sunrises and sunsets. Also, it’s a pleasure and an honor to write for the Powell Tribune. Having already met Editor Baird and Mrs. Baird, we are sure we shall get along nicely.

“Greenhorns”

Your columnist is one of the gaping greenhorns who are seeing kangaroo mice for the first time—they’re cute (the mice, we mean). And some are seeing snow and experiencing below freezing weather for the first time in their lives. This is quite a contrast to the semi-tropical palms, Poinsettia hedges, and the almost seasonless days of southern California, for instance. Those who are “oldtimers” or who are well acquainted with the cooler states, laugh when some of us new softies complain about the “cold” when the temperature drops down to about 30-20 degrees above.

The younger American citizen of Japanese ancestry are pop-eyed with delight when it snows and get “mad at” their parents with disappointment when it doesn’t—as if the latter were directly responsible for the vagaries of the weather.

The Real McCoy

Some of the kiddies are seeing sheep for the first time too. Many of these tots have come from such metropolitan areas as San Francisco and Los Angeles, and although a few had seen pictures of sheep in their books (or maybe on their plates as lamb chops), they’d never seen the live sheep on the hoof.

You can imagine the excitement about a month ago when a flock of sheep passed by the northwest corner of the Center just about noon time. Some of the kiddies in the end mess hall, although hungry, left practically untouched dinner to rush out after the sheep. One kid excitedly described the baa-ing animals as pigs.

Incidentally, all of the youngsters speak fluent English, and for most of them, this is the only language which they know.

New Americans

Many of these children are third generation Americans, since their parents were born here in the United States. Their grandparents, the so-called “aliens” who were born in Japan, are called “Issei” (pronounced ee-say) meaning the “first generation.” They are aliens not because they want to be, but because by U.S. law they are ineligible for

American citizenship. Their American-born sons and daughters are the second generation or the “Nisei” (nee-say), many of whom are now married and have new American offspring of their own.

The average age of the Nisei is about 22, which makes him a young person just out of college, making his way out into the world, and one who is about to cast his vote for the second time. He may have black hair, oriental eyes, and look like a Japanese, but he most certainly is anything but. In fact, he resents being called a Jap.

Some Caucasian Americans may not know it, but the word Jap has a very derogatory connotation—the same as “Dago” “Chink” or “Greaser.” Not even the Issei like to be referred to as “Jap,” let alone the Nisei. The American-born young people are designated as Nisei, Japanese-Americans, Americans of Japanese descent, or as Louis Adamic, the noted author, aptly does, “Americans with Japanese Faces.”